Tom's Dream Job

Tom likes doing sports very much. He is a super fan of Manchester United. Last Friday, he went to the Hong Kong Coliseum with his dad to watch the football match. He was very excited. At the end of the match, he asked his dad a question. He begged, 'Dad, I want to be a football player.' His dad said, 'Being a football player is not easy. You need to spend a lot of time to practise. You need to co-operate with your teammates. Are you sure you can do it?'

Tom promised, 'I'm sure I can do it! I won't give up easily.' His dad said, 'If you give up easily, I won't let you learn anything else.'

The next week, Tom's dad sent him to a football team. Tom attended the practice. The captain said, 'Welcome, please join us, Tom!' He grinned, 'Thank you! I'll do my best.' He followed the captain to do some exercises.

After that the captain introduced Tom to his team. Then he taught them some football skills, such as running with the ball, first touch and striking the ball. Then, the captain kicked the ball to John. He was very excited, so he ran as fast as he could. Suddenly, he tripped over. He twisted his ankle. He yelled, 'Oh, my leg hurts! How painful!'

The captain quickly called the ambulance. Tom was sent to the hospital. He stayed at the hospital for one week.

Dad asked Tom, 'Do yo want to continue practising football?' 'Yes, of course! I won't give up easily.' said Tom.
