

A Memorable Day With Stinky Monkey

It was a sunny but cold winter morning at Stinky Monkey tree house. We were drinking some hot drink while others were doing homework.

We were watching TV and eating popcorn but we just ignored the homework because we still had one month to do it. Suddenly our parents came in and told us to do homework, I said, 'Just five more minutes.' But they said, 'No, do it now.' So we had to do it then.

Suddenly we saw a rock that was as red as fire falling from the sky and crush our school. I said, 'Good thing, we are not at school today.'

We were curious about our school, so we ran there as quick as flash. When we arrived, we found out that our school wasn't crushed but it was stuck underground. He said, 'Does that mean we will have to jump down into the hole and climb out of this every day?'

Just then our principal came out of the hole and he told us we will know soon but I got an idea so I said, 'How about we turn it into something fun?' Neither of them thought it was a bad idea.

After we went home, I turned on the TV. The government said the school might turn into an underground campsite and the students of that school don't have to go to the school anymore. They can go there for free! He said, 'Oh boy, this is going to be great!' So all the students went there for a year.
